AT THE FRONT.

CARLSRUHE, Aug. 6.—The army of Baden, yesterday, passed the French frontier and advanced to Lauterburg, where it established headquarters, and seized some boats in the river.

The French loss at Neuf-Brisach was One killed and one wounded. They evacuated St. Louis Station.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The Journal Officiel says the French troops who, on the anniversary of Napoleon's birth, were engaged in the Rhine Valley between Weissenburg, and to connect with two Prussian army corps, one of the Crown Prince of Prussia's army, advanced, and soon, "In spite of the inferiority of numbers, our regiments routed the attacking forces of four hours' engagement. The loss of the enemy was at least three times as great as ours. The loss of the French was 40 officers killed or wounded and 1,000 men killed or wounded. Our troops remained masters of the field of battle, near Worth, 4,000 p. m."

[To Reuter.] Despatches from Metz to 2 p. m. to-day, state that the Prussian loss at Worth was 20,000 men. The French loss was 5,000 men. The Prussians are massing troops at Metz. The Prussian army, from Treves and Saarlouis, commenced yesterday. The Prussians are also massing troops at Thionville. The Prussians attacked Thionville in overwhelming numbers. After some resistance, the French troops were withdrawn from the town and fell back on the main body forming the army commanded by the Crown Prince, which is in front of Rohrbach, the advance guard of the French force making slight resistance. To-day there was a general advance of the whole German line. The King has joined the army.

Upwards of 6,000 prisoners have been forwarded to Frankfort.

The position of the main body of the French army is at present unknown. The French forces are concentrating at Metz and Nancy.

MacMahon's corps is supposed to have fallen back from Bitche and Hagenau toward Metz and Nancy.

There are reports that Napoleon is ill.

The Prussian troops are moving on Metz.

A dispatch from Berlin says that Frederick William, commanding the South-German army, has issued the following proclamation:

"Appointed, to command not by the King, I greet you, my brave troops, who, under my leadership, are united under my command. Your courage, discipline and perseverance fill me with confidence that you will be able to accomplish whatever may be necessary to defend our fatherland. I am confident to spread your flag over new victories—victories which, God willing us, will insure honor and peace to our fatherland."

The German press a despatch from Metz, reporting that a regiment of the royal guard of Prussia, the 4th of the 3d Prussian corps, on Thursday, and a Prussian General wounded. The French soldiers fought like lions, and the loss of the enemy was [illegible].

FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The police last night made a number of search warrants for the houses of well by private parties. The Legislature that the rule requiring them to be [illegible] and had been violated.

The Paris Municipal Council opposed the Garde Mobile yesterday, by a majority of the council, "Are you willing to sustain the regular army, in case of war?" to which the reply was unanimously signified that they were ready to support the regular army in case of the service already, and cried out, "Long live the Army!" Many members, returning with rapture the sentiment they were unworthy the name of Frenchmen, if they refused to support the army in the hour of the fact. They hardly seemed to realize that, although not regular troops, they were subject to the discipline of martial law, and that they had two ring-leaders brought to a drum-head court martial, and shot directly. This news comes from a person who says he read it in a letter from a private soldier, who was one of the firing party. It is known here that the commander-in-chief of the garde mobile is very bad, and they want shutter and food.

There is great indignation at Metz, from the Prussians having denied the misfortune coal mines, which produce 5,000,000 tons of coal yearly, one-half of which was consumed in France.

A French paper here believes the French naval fleet to the Baltic, to act as ambulances.

It was General Abel Douay, an infantry commander, who was killed at Wissembourg, and not General C. Douay, the General commanding a Division.

PARIS, Aug 6—Evening.—The entombment of the people here over favorable reports from the war is indescribable. Great crowds fill the streets, and cheers, of course, to that no telegrams pass, and they shout and sing patriotic songs. Placards are posted on the fences giving the particulars of the last two days' fighting. Official reports are constantly expected, but have not been received yet, and as the government will permit no publication of reports that is telegraphed against the bulletin reports cannot be issued.

The minister made last night upon the shops of the Jews and Germans, and the cries of "Down with Germans, Prussians, Jews," and other remarks made by some of their number. Who are Germans. The police protect the shops and places where Germans are known to live, which have the name of Germans. Bedlam for the present seems to have broken out in Paris.

The shops shuttered last night.

The Council of Ministers has addressed over the signature of all its members, the following proclamation to the inhabitants of Paris:

"Paris will defend itself naturally assisted by entire nationalities. The entire have been delivered, and justice now investigates their treason. Paris will be worthy of its glorious past. We want to preserve each minister, in the name of our country, in the name of our honor, in the name of our children, to defend Paris. Paris would be a traitor to itself if it allowed the enemy to approach its walls without meeting him with the most determined resistance. Paris will do its duty."

GREAT BRITAIN.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The Prussian Government has given orders to the Prussian consuls in Great Britain to serve as agents of the Belgian consuls.

The Times this morning says it is necessary to have two armies actually in the field, and that the Prussian army is now [illegible] and sending military supplies with all [illegible] however, to [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] with always such a force opposed to [illegible] AS ARMIES, within a month or two from the choice of Sedan and the Crown Prince is regulating its diplomatic service, showing that the changes in the German diplomatic corps are more frequent than in the American.

The Saturday Review regrets the withdrawal of the French troops from Rome by the necessity of their presence elsewhere, but hopes that the withdrawal will always such a force as to [illegible] of the Italian Government, including the [illegible] of Rome.

The Spectator says that any invasion in England would be [illegible] which is regarded by Englishmen as impossible. The Spectator says that the duty of England is to [illegible] the [illegible] of France, and to [illegible] the [illegible] of the Prussian Government.

The Saturday Review considers the withdrawal of the French troops from Rome by the necessity of their presence elsewhere, but [illegible] that the withdrawal will always such a force as to [illegible] of the Italian Government, including the [illegible] of Rome.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—[2:30 p. m.—There is a better feeling this morning in the city. The [illegible] cannot be traced to any [illegible] of [illegible] news. It is generally the result simply of the [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible].

LONDON, Aug. 6.—[4:30 p. m.—The Globe, on authority of a telegram from Berlin, says: "The battle of Worth was fought on Saturday, August 6th. The Prussian army was victorious. The French army was defeated with great loss. The Prussian army was victorious. The French army was defeated with great loss."

LONDON, Aug. 6.—[5:30 p. m.—The following despatch is just received here:

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—Noon.—Saturday, August 6.—The Prince Royal has defeated Marshal MacMahon.

The following is the official report of the victory for the Crown Prince:

"BERLIN, Aug. 6.—Noon.—[4:30 p. m.—The Prince Royal telegraphs the following bulletin from the field of battle:

"A decisive victory has been fought near Worth. MacMahon was totally beaten by the larger portion of my command. The French retreat upon Bitche.

"FREDERICK WILHELM,
"Prince Royal.

"Field of Battle, near Worth, 4:30 p. m."

[To Reuter.] A duplicate of the above despatch has been received direct from the agent of the celebrated Prussian correspondent.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, Aug. 6.—General Tiny publishes a letter to-day in which he says he has received a private despatch, sent at midnight last night, from Count Bismarck, reporting that MacMahon beat the Prussians pursuing him, and that the Prussian army of Wissembourg, Saarbrück commanded by Steinmetz, has been reassembled. The same despatch says that the crown princes of Saxony and Wurtemberg. He was but two hours marching from the front, and his men marched at midnight with [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WHITE STOCKINGS VS. MARYLANDS.

A considerable portion of the lovers of base-ball playing proficiency assembled at Camac Park, on the corner of Ogden avenue and Harrison street, on Saturday afternoon, to witness the game between the Chicago and Maryland clubs of this city. Previous to the commencement of the game, the Chicagos were the favorites, and those who thought so had the best of the betting. Subsequent events have shown that the Marylands were the favorites, and those who thought so had the best of the betting. The Chicagos were beaten, and the Marylands were victorious. The Chicagos were beaten because they played poorly, and the Marylands were victorious because they played well. The Chicagos played poorly because they were not in condition to play well, and the Marylands played well because they were in condition to play well. The Chicagos were not in condition to play well because they had been playing too much ball, and the Marylands were in condition to play well because they had been playing too little ball. The Chicagos had been playing too much ball because they had been playing for the championship of the United States, and the Marylands had been playing too little ball because they had been playing for nothing. The Chicagos had been playing for the championship of the United States because they had been playing for the championship of the United States, and the Marylands had been playing for nothing
